CCADP President 2019

The University of Cincinnati offers students a balance of educational excellence and real-world experience. UC is a public research university with an enrollment of more than 46,000 students and has been named "Among the top tier of the Best National Universities," according to U.S. News & World Report. The University of Cincinnati serves the people of Ohio, the nation, and the world as a premier, public, urban research university dedicated to undergraduate, graduate, and professional education, experience-based learning, and research.

Through scholarship, service, partnerships, and leadership, we create opportunity, develop educated and engaged citizens, enhance the economy and enrich our university, city, state and global community.

The University of Cincinnati Libraries is an integral partner in the university's efforts to achieve its core mission of teaching, research and community engagement. Through the work of our Strategic Plan, and with the realization of our mission and vision, we support the platforms of academic excellence, urban impact and the innovation agenda outlined in the university's #Next Lives Here strategic directions.

Experience-Based Learning and Career Education

The University of Cincinnati has the oldest and one of the largest cooperative education programs in the world. We invented cooperative education in 1906; each year more than 3,500 students participate in co-op, and our program consistently ranks in the top 20 nationwide. For students, this means graduating with a degree, a resume and a plan for your future. For companies and organizations, this means a wealth of talent is available here and eager to work with you in a variety of traditional and non-traditional arrangements. We'll help you find what works best for you and continue to support you in a long-term relationship with the University.

Speakers & Presenters

Neville G. Pinto
President
University of Cincinnati

Neville Pinto serves as the 30th President of the University of Cincinnati. He took office on Feb. 20, 2017.

As UC's president, he has led the Carnegie Research 1 university as it celebrates its Bicentennial and looks ahead to its next century. He guided the development of the university's strategic direction, NEXT LIVES HERE, a new paradigm for university planning that UC launched in February 2018. NEXT LIVES HERE is a multi-year vision that allows the university to be nimble and responsive to the world's changing landscape. It focuses on UC becoming a leader in innovation and impact with three main platforms of academic excellence, the innovation agenda and urban impact. As a part of this strategic direction, Pinto established a position for the university's first Chief Innovation Officer and the university opened doors on its 1819 Innovation Hub and opened its first Staff Success Center. He also has presided as UC celebrates its Bicentennial and looks ahead to its next century.

Dr. Pinto is the first UC president to rise from the ranks of UC's faculty since Herman Schneider, the founder of cooperative education (1928-1932). Pinto has spent his entire career as a university teacher, researcher and administrator. Just prior to returning to UC to serve as president, Dr. Pinto served as acting president and professor of chemical engineering at the University of Louisville. Before serving at the University of Louisville, he served for 26 years on the faculty in chemical engineering at the University of Cincinnati, where he established the Adsorption and Ion Exchange Laboratory, which focused on research in biochemical and environmental engineering.

Earlier in his career at the University of Cincinnati, Pinto held a number of administrative posts where he had a leadership role in attracting major external awards totaling over $10 million to the University of Cincinnati to support graduate and STEM education.

Pinto joined the University of Louisville as Dean of the Speed School of Engineering in 2011. While dean, his accomplishments included overseeing a major expansion in the enrollment of the college and spearheading the development of the Belknap Engineering and Applied Sciences Research Park. He significantly strengthened the university's relationship with GE, to develop a partnership that has led to significant educational and career opportunities for students and encouraged the company to bring its FirstBuild microfactory to campus. This effort earned the Silver Fleur-de-Lis award from Greater Louisville Inc. in 2015.

Between May 2015 and July 2016, Pinto served as Interim Executive Vice President and University Provost at UoL. During this period, he finalized the 21st Century University Plan and launched major initiatives to strengthen educational excellence, student success and access, research and community engagement. He was appointed Acting President in 2016.

Pinto was born in Mumbai, India. He was educated at the Indian Institute of Technology, New Delhi, where he earned his bachelor's in chemical engineering. He earned his MS and his PhD in chemical engineering at Penn State University.
